

I use my XM Radio all the time and I depend upon it to get me local traffic and weather conditions no matter where I am in the country. There is no logical reason to prevent XM from providing this valuable service. The only reason would be to protect large, more powerful mega-media corporations who already enjoy too large of a market presence. XM is new, different, commercial free and innovative. This is exactly the type of American ingenuity that we should be promoting. Any actions by the FCC to stop XM would be contrary to these aims.
